

Respect and Social Inclusion

Respectful and inclusive services

- Consultation with older adults
- Adapted services and products
- Trained staff

Public images of ageing

- Sharing expertise
- Participation in the school system
- Curriculum development on aging
- Public awareness

On the one hand, many older adults feel they are often respected, recognized and included, while on the other, they experience lack of consideration in the community, in services and in family. The extent to which older adults participate in the social, civic and economic life of the city is also closely linked to their experience of inclusion.

Economic inclusion

- Access cards
- Government programs
- Costs of programs

Intergenerational and family interactions

- Abandonment/abuse
- Respectful interactions
- All-ages and family activities
- Working with youth
- Community wide events

Community Inclusion

- Representation
- Leadership/ decision making
- Contributions both past and present
- Neighbourhood connectivity
- Social engagement
- Volunteerism
