

Bicentennial award

volunteers

Honors to 13 citizens for special efforts

By MARY LOUISE BIRKS
Staff Writer

Thirteen Mississauga citizens will receive prestigious Bicentennial awards for exemplary volunteer work in the community.

The Mississaugans — four women and nine men — are among 1,984 Ontario residents who will receive special gold-plated award medals at ceremonies across the province this fall.

During her trip to Canada this fall, Queen Elizabeth will be presented with a solid gold replica of the volunteers' Bicentennial medal. The official announcement of the award-winners will be made in August.

Nominated by city council to receive the award are: Rev. Maury Blair, Barbara Hammond, Gary Clipperton, Richard Clewes, Claude Racey, Alberto Cataudella, Elias (Louis) Velianou, A.J. Brands, Jeffery (Ed) Armstrong, Donna Howard, Carole Berry, Harry Hassal Sr., and Lucy Turnbull.

...

Bicentennial award nominee Carol Berry has been executive director of the Malton Community Council since 1978. In this capacity she is responsible for developing and administering such programs as the Malton Community Information Service, English as a Second Language classes, citizenship ceremonies, and special employment projects.

In addition to co-ordinating the annual Malton Community Festival, the Laddie Cres. resident produces and hosts a bi-weekly Cable 10 Mississauga community affairs program about Malton and provides cultural sensitization training to community groups and volunteer organizations.

From 1976 to 1983 Berry served as president and past president of Mercury Youth Services, a children's mental health centre.

She is active in the Unitarian Congregation of South Peel.

...

see Biography

July 18, 1984 BERRY, CAROL