dent John Berges, a colleague of Hughes, said he will be well remembered at the board for his keen interest in golf. "He was a keen and avid golfer," Berges said of the charter member of the Trafalgar Golf and Country Club.

Hughes started working for the public school board in 1975 as a superintendent in Brampton. He became planning superintendent in 1979. During his tenure, the issue of school closings and a policy to review such closings kept the spotlight focussed on the planning post.

Hughes is survived by his wife Fern and his daughter Heather, who lives in Victoria, B.C.
