Community Living Mississauga hosted the foundation's 35th annual Tribute Dinner honouring Joseph S. Mancinelli at the Mississauga Convention Centre.

The convention centre was at capacity last Thursday, March 29, with just over 1,800 guests in attendance to pay tribute to Mancinelli.

The evening's entertainment included performances from Canada's Got Talent finalist Emilio Fina and international performing artists VIVA Trio - as well as remarks and video presentations from some of Mancinelli's family, friends and special guests.

Mancinelli serves as the Labourers' International Union of North America (LIUNA) international vice-president and regional manager of Central and Eastern Canada - a union with over 120,000 members in Canada. He is also the chair of the Labourers' Pension Fund of Central and Eastern Canada (LPFCEC), president of the LIUNA Ontario District Council, chair of the Labourers' Central and Eastern Canada Organizing Fund (CECOF) and is a trustee on the LIUNA Health and Safety, Training and LECET Board.

An advocate of community building, Mancinelli is a champion of benevolent causes, having served on numerous committees. He is an ardent supporter of the arts, and is passionate about the restoration of historical sites.

Now in its 35th year, the annual Tribute Dinner raises much-needed funds to provide opportunities for children and teens who have an intellectual disability to attend summer camp programs; in addition, people will be supported to participate in community-based recreational, leisure and volunteer opportunities.

Founded in 1965, Community Living Mississauga is a nonprofit, charitable organization which provides support to more than 3,000 individuals who have an intellectual disability and their families.
