Erindale professor honors list increases

NOT FOR CIRCULATION

Erindale Campus professor, media commentator and columnist Desmond Morton has had another honor added to his long list of prestigious accomplishments, in receiving the University of Toronto's Alumni Faculty Award.

That award is based on academic excellence, combined with service to the university and contribution to the community. Morton becomes the eighth recipient of the award.

Also this year, Morton was honored with the Killam Fellowship, the most prestigious academic award in Canada.

Morton also received, in 1982, an Ontario Confederation of University Faculty Associations' Teaching Award in recognition of his outstanding teaching abilities.

A faculty professor with Erindale's history department, Morton is also an active member of the Peel Social Planning Council, the Streetsville Historical Society, a frequent commentator for the CBC and Global television and a guest columnist with the Toronto Star newspaper.
